

THAT'S BABY.

One little row of ten little toes,
To go along with a brand-new nose,
Eight new fingers and two new thumbs—
That are just as good as sugar plums—
That's baby.

One little pair of round new eyes,
Like little crows, so old and wise,
One little place they call a mouth,
Without one tooth from north to south—
That's baby.

Two little cheeks to kiss all day,
Two little hands, so old and wise,
A brand-new head, not very big,
That seems to need a brand-new wig—
That's baby.

Dear little row of ten little toes,
How much we love them nobody knows;
Ten little kisses on mouth and chin,
What a shame he wasn't a twin!
That's baby.

VARIETY.

When you feel like calling a big man a liar, be sure you're right, then use the telephone.

It is only when they have reached the Browning point that a Boston housewife will serve baked beans.

Pedestrian (to applicant for charity): "Go shoot yourself!" Guzzler, the Tramp (sadly): "I ain't loaded."

Stayner (witnessing the preparation): "Off for the summer?" Godsey (struggling with innumerable boxes): "No; in for it."

The Toronto Globe tells of a man who has cooked his own breakfast for fifteen years. He must like it very well done.

Somewhat Otherwise—She—I wouldn't marry you for $20,000. He—But I have $50,000. She—Oh, well, that's different.

Clara: "What a terrible noise that wagon makes!" George: "Yes, it's dreadful, isn't it?" "What makes it 'groan so, George?" "Why, it is filled with green apples."

Superintendent of an electric railway (to applicant for a position): "What is your name?" Applicant: "Wood, sir." "You want to be appointed conductor?" "Yes, sir." "Can't take you, sir." "Why not?" "Electric experts say that Wood is a poor conductor."

"Do you belong to the Salvation Army?" he asked of a stern-visaged woman who stood at his side. "No, sir, I do not. But in this generation of tired men," she added, with a withering glance at the row of sitting males, "I seem to belong to the standing army." She got a seat.

A teacher asked her class in geography where the Turks live. The remarkable reply was: "In the woods." Thinking the people had confounded the Orientals with the aborigines, the answer was pronounced to be "incorrect." The pupil rejoined: "Well, I have seen them there roosting in the trees."

Romantic Spinster: "Excuse me, sir, but is not this the spot where that beautiful girl fell into the water last summer, and was so gallantly rescued by the gentleman who afterwards married her. Practical Bachelor (giving her a penetrating glance): "Yes, ma'am; but I can't swim."

Here is an old salt's story of how he got a glass of grog. When at the wheel Captain South says: "How does she head?" "South-east by south-half-south, a little southerly, Captain South." "Put another 's' to that, my man, and you shall have a glass of grog," says the captain. "South-east by south-half-south, a little southerly, Captain South, sir." The grog came.

A widow called at a sculptor's studio to see the clay model of the bust of her husband. "I can change it in any particular that you may desire," he said. The widow looked at it with tearful eyes. "The nose is large," she remarked. "A large nose is a sign of goodness," said the artist. The widow wiped away her tears, and sobbed: "Well, then, make it a little larger."

An Irish gentleman was recently attended by an eminent London physician, who, pausing and looking at him with an inquiring glance, said: "I should like to know, sir, if your family have been long-lived?" "Long-lived, is it?" responded the patient thoughtfully. "Well, doctor, I'll just tell you how it is. Our family is a West of Ireland family, and the age of my ancestors depended entirely on the judge and jury who tried them!"

Lord Lonsdale, who was reputed to have the largest family of daughters among the English aristocracy, was once taking a walk at B, a German watering-place, with his six oldest daughters. Two other visitors followed at a little distance, and one of them remarked, in an undertone: "Alas! poor man! But the lord, who had overheard the observation, turned round and replied, with gentle emphasis: "Not so poor as you think, sir; I have six other daughters at home!"

The London Lancet says: "Children who are allowed to go barefooted enjoy almost perfect immunity from the danger of 'cold' by accidental chilling of the feet, and they are altogether healthier and happier than those who, in obedience to the usages of social life, have their lower extremities permanently inviolated, and, so to say, carefully swathed and put away in rigid cases. As regards the poorer classes of children, there can be no sort of doubt in the mind of anyone that it is incomparably better they should go barefooted than wear boots that let in the wet, and stockings that are nearly always damp and foul."

THE SEIZED SEALERS.

The London "Times" Advocates Vigorous Measures.

LONDON, August 23.—The London Press Association says the English Government has intimated to the United States Government its willingness to negotiate a settlement of the Behring sea matter, and now awaits the American Government's reply.

The Times says there is a curious want of seriousness about the Behring sea seizures. It appears to be intended to frighten away Victorian sealers by the sham formalities of capture and not to exact the usual penalties. America appears to think that this course will appease the Alaska company, please the Irish electors, and yet not provoke British reprisals; but she has no right to play a game of "bounce" with weapons of illegal capture and search. Unless England takes some active measures America will be perfectly content with an interchange of views till doomsday. The Americans will not find us unreasonable on the score of preserving seals from extinction, but if they persist in refusing to discuss any settlement, our only course is to take vigorous steps to insure that our rights are respected.

OTTAWA, August 23.—It is now admitted in political circles here that Lord Stanley has made an urgent representation regarding the recent seizures in Behring sea. A leading official of the Fisheries department says he feels certain that an international commission will be appointed after the expiration of the Alaska Commercial Company's contract to settle the Atlantic and Behring sea question. He feels confident that compensation for the late seizures will be paid the Canadian vessel-owners. Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, Minister of Customs, has telegraphed to Victoria for information regarding the recent seizures in the Behring sea. He expresses himself as pleased with the attitude assumed by the London Times on this question.

A rumor is current to-night that proposals have been sent from Washington to London as a basis of settlement of the Behring sea dispute, and it is for the purpose of considering it that an important meeting of the Cabinet has been called. It is impossible, however, to verify the statement. Those possessed of the facts maintain that the correspondence received from the British Government is confidential and will not be made public.

OTTAWA, August 24.—People here are highly indignant over the apparent anxiety of the British Government regarding the seized sealers. It is rumored in official circles, that the Imperial Government has ordered the British warships of the Pacific station to keep away from Behring sea.

THE ENGLISH NAVAL DISPLAY.

The British nation has shown to Kaiser Wilhelm the immensity of its naval strength, in a demonstration of welcome but seldom accorded even the most distinguished guest. To think that over a hundred vessels of war, some of them the most formidable afloat, manned by the renowned British seamen to the number of nearly 25,000, will give some idea to us of the vast armament England has at her command upon the sea, and of which this was but a part.

Through a lane of war-ships decorated with bunting, manned by seamen at every available point, and with guns belching forth a salute of welcome, the little yacht Hohenzollern, with the young ruler of the German empire, must have seemed small indeed, and have given him an introduction to a power available on the deep, capable of coping with the united navies of any two other nations on the globe, and of a character as renowned for valor as any of the records of history can display. What the land forces of Prussia are to the continent Europe, the navy of England is to the world, the best drilled and the best equipped. And the timely display "by the light little isles" of their prowess, even though in giving a royal salute, will have, no doubt, a salutary effect upon the restless spirit which animates the young and ambitious German Emperor.

Americans once could contemplate such a display as occurred at Portsmouth with some feelings of complacency in considering that upon the two occasions where we were pitted against them in deadly combat, the superiority of our countrymen was demonstrated to the world, not alone in the ships, their maneuvering, or equipment, but in the intrepid gallantry which marked our seamen, and the steadfastness with which they persisted until they conquered. But at this time we must think far different thoughts. If England were to engage us to-day, all our ships, all our manœuvres, our equipment or gallantry could not withstand one good broadside from the English fleet that would attack us. We would be as powerless as inanimate objects, and as vulnerable at every point of naval attack as the most savage tribe that inhabits the coasts of Africa.

The demonstrations in England at Portsmouth and Spithead, where the flower of the British navy passed in review before the royal guest, teaches a lesson to us which it would be well for us to learn, and that quickly.—American paper.

It is nearly fifteen years since the last typhoon swept over Hongkong, in September, 1874, when numbers of vessels were sunk in the harbor, the Praya wall was partially destroyed, vast numbers of buildings partially demolished, and over five thousand lives lost.

Blondin, the well-known rope-walker, has wagered $20,000 that he can walk on a cable from the top of the Eiffel Tower to the central dome of the Exposition building in less than five minutes.
